

As to who the dark-complexioned man is, however, they have no idea. A peculiar incident raised at the Cooper home Thursday evening on the subject of whether or not Crowe was a mustache when he called to buy the pony. Mrs. Cooper insists that he did not, while her father, Daniel Burris, insists that he did. Both said they spoke with him on those occasions, so they had an equal opportunity of observing, but they can't agree on the point. Crowe has been identified by four persons besides those living at 319 Grand avenue. They are H. K. Munshaw, Mrs. Joseph Schindler and the two Misses Patrick, who live in Happy Hollow. Those incline to the belief that he was a "blonde mustache, quite long at the ends. Mrs. Fred E. Pearl of South Omaha, however, who has known Crowe for twenty-five years, insists that on December 8 she saw and spoke with him, and especially remarked at the time that his face was smooth. Aside from this one feature the descriptions given by the witnesses agree in every essential point. Chief Deane is of the opinion that one set of witnesses is mistaken in the matter of the mustache; that Crowe's mustache, being blonde, would be less noticeable than a black mustache. He says that the persons who spoke with him simply failed to take note of it.

Of the two photographs of Pat Crowe which were selected by Mrs. Cooper, one was a regular gallery picture and was taken seven years ago, when he was wearing quite a heavy mustache. The other he was taken last April when he was smooth-shaven. The mustache seems to make very little difference in his facial appearance. It is curious fact, however, that he looks younger in the picture taken last April than in the one taken seven years ago.

CROWE'S WOMAN IN CHICAGO

Windy City Detectives Watch the Haunts of the Chicago Kidnaping Victim's Omaha Mad Man. CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(Special Telegram.)—Love for a Chicago woman, at present under watch by a host of central station detectives, may prove the undoing of Pat Crowe, the desperado wanted by the Omaha police on the charge that he is the kidnaper of E. A. Cudaby's boy. In the belief that Crowe will be found in communication sooner or later with his sweetheart here, Pat Joyce, acting chief of detectives, placed four detectives this afternoon on duty near the well-known haunts of the woman with whom Crowe has been infatuated for years.

From the report in Joyce's possession tonight he is felt justified in announcing some startling discoveries. It had been proved beyond question during the day's investigations that the woman who, under the name of Nellie Divine, hired the house at Omaha in which the Cudaby boy was imprisoned pending the payment of the $25,000 ransom, is in Chicago. It is she whom the detectives have under constant surveillance, assured that through a close espionage of her movements the arrest of Crowe and the reward of $25,000 for his capture will be secured.

BURRIS SEES THE BAY PONY

Is Positive It Is the One He Sold in Omaha on December 14. A special to The Bee from Pacific Junction, Ia., says that E. Warren and Daniel Burris of Omaha arrived in that city yesterday and positively identified the bay pony, now in the hands of Joseph Goodrich, as the animal sold to the bandits in Omaha, December 14. When they arrived Mr. Goodrich would not permit them to see the animal, as he believed their reward a ruse to cheat him of any reward that might be forthcoming for the delivery of the pony, but while they were talking the pony thrust its head through the window. Burris secured a glimpse of the head with the white star in the forehead and at once exclaimed, "That is the pony I sold to those two men!"

Bedwick county, Kansas, was his only rival, Joe Patchen, 2,014, in Marion county. Amugler, 2,154, one of the greatest trotters of his time, was reared and developed here, as well as Joe Young, 2,18, the grandest of such winners, who, with a pair of such winners as Crepuscul, Gratian Boy and others. Robert McGregor, 2,174, had his home in Kansas for many years. All these were famous types of the harness or roadster class. Perhaps, however, wiser the variety given in breeding of the types especially adapted to draft and similar purposes, and in the last few years reared and added interest in this particular industry has been apparent. March 1, 1900, there were 786,888 horses in the state, valued at $23,344,600, and 1,000,000 asses $89,044, worth $5,343,840. The state's greatest animal wealth lies in its herds of cattle and swine, which after year steadily bring to their producers a profitable recompense for intelligent investment. The official statistics show the number of stock cattle now to be the largest in the history of the state, mostly grades of the best breeds and valued at $60,932,000, and the 2,258,734 hogs on hand March 1, 1900, were valued on the farms at $17,920,000. By nature Kansas is a superb fattening ground for live stock of all kinds. With her numerous varieties of grains and grasses some one or more of them being especially adapted to and prospering in the various conditions of the different sections, the state is enabled to practically assure of a wellnigh unlimited supply of the very best meat-producing foods which are largely and profitably marketed via the live stock routes. Animals slaughtered for food or sold for other purposes represented $2,600,000, and the live stock ending March 1, 1900, and annually for the last ten years Kansas has given to the shambles animals having an average home value of considerably more than $42,500,000, or an aggregate of over $427,000,000. In this connection it is worthy of note and proper to correct an erroneous impression that has somehow become widespread, and that is that the great stockyards and gigantic slaughter and packing houses of Kansas City, with one exception the most extensive of the kind, have practically been maintained and made possible by the state of Kansas, as many are led to believe, but in Kansas City, Kan., the state's metropolitan city. As a matter of fact, the latest available figures show that the live stock of Kansas furnished six times as many as its closest competitor, and often more and very seldom ever less than 50 per cent of the entire number of cattle received at the Kansas City stock yards each year, not to mention the revenue derived from the contributions to the state's wealth, and the amounts received each twelve months from the surplus of poultry and eggs have increased until in 1900 it reached $5,069,332, or more than twice the amount of the year that have paid the total expense of the excellent school system for the same time. The figures in the table below, showing for the last five years the total value of the products of Kansas live stock, to-wit: Cattle, hogs, sheep, swine, poultry, wool clip, butter and cheese manufactured, and poultry, eggs and milk sold, disclose a marvelous record:

Table with 3 columns: Year, Bushels, Value. Data for years 1891-1900 showing agricultural production and value.

Value of the Corn Crop.

The following table, compiled from the official records of the State Board of Agriculture, gives the annual production and value of corn for the last ten years, together with their totals:

Kansas had wheat as sought for shipment to mills in other states for mixing with the famous soft wheats from the northwest, thereby greatly improving their product in the market.

For years Kansas flouring mills have consigned heavy shipments of their products to leading markets throughout the United States and to foreign countries, where it is received with much favor.

high indispensable. These are alfalfa (medicosa sativa) and sorghum, the chief variety of which for forage and grain is Kafir corn, one of the many non-saccharine sorghums. Fruit, especially apples, peaches, grapes and berries of high quality are largely grown in Kansas, and some of the largest commercial apple orchards in existence are found here, the products of which are sought eagerly by distant packers and exporters for the domestic and foreign markets. Next to her higher order of citizenship it is, however, ever, upon agriculture proper and live stock husbandry that Kansas bases her claims to pre-eminence and future wealth.

Graduates Are Disbarred.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—The last day's session of the annual convention of the National Federation of Graduate Clubs was devoted principally to a discussion of the advisability of a permanent organization. Numerous delegates were of the opinion that the federation had outlived its usefulness and that a new organization would be better than the half-hearted real organization of the present convention. No action was taken on the subject, however.

Cattle Club Offered.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 20.—The American Devon Cattle club, composed of a number of representative breeders of Jerseys, Guernseys and Brown Swiss cattle, in annual session here today elected the following officers: President, John Baker, Beaver Dam, Wis.; vice president, John H. Hudson, Newark, N. J.; secretary, E. P. Sisson, Newark, N. J.; John Hudson of Mowaka, Ill., was elected a member of the executive committee.

Cremeries Are Profitable.

Scores and scores of creameries at first established as questionable experiments are now permanent, profitable institutions, and produce over a million dollars' worth of quantities and of export quality. Admirable natural roads, passable everywhere throughout the year, enable the producer to bring his supplies to the stations or factories regularly. The use of new and improved machinery and the presence of rival companies with large capital insure acceptance of the milk and a profitable cash remuneration each month of the year to the producer, whether marketing the product of one cow or of 1,000. The best of the whole country are available the year through, modern transportation and refrigerating facilities insuring the prompt delivery of goods in perfect condition to the dealer of the table. To such an extent has the business of the creamery become so remunerative that many transatlantic markets.
